Maritime Law & Shipping Contracts

INTRODUCTION

Maritime law is a complex and fascinating specialised area of law. It brings together many aspects of law (e.g. contract, tort, bailment, agency) together with a plethora of international conventions attempting to harmonise and regulate the legal arrangements between states in order to facilitate trade and reduce conflict.

EuroMaTech's Maritime Law & Shipping Contracts training course will provide participants with a sound understanding of the various aspects of Maritime Law, from carriage of goods by sea to international law and law of the sea. There will be an emphasis on the main aspects of Maritime Law, as it relates to the role of Ports and Pilotage in the maritime trade, and its obligations and liabilities under Maritime Law.

The training course aims to enable you to; (1) Develop professionals who engage with appropriate and relevant general and specialist knowledge in relation to Maritime Law, (2) Address the legal and commercial basis of shipping contracts, (3) Examine in detail Sale of Goods contracts, Charter parties and Bills of Lading along with the special shipping terms they incorporate, (4) Know the obligations of Ports, Pilotage and Limitation of Liability under Maritime Law

Participants attending the Maritime Law & Shipping Contracts training course will develop the following competencies:

- Understanding of the fundamental basis of Maritime Law
- Gain full knowledge of Shipping Contracts like Time and Voyage Charter Parties
- Know the Rights and obligations of parties under Bills of Lading & Contract for the Carriage of Goods and Sale of Goods.
